Dear Colleagues,

We are most pleased to present you the first issue of our international and peer-reviewed journal that has just started its publication life.

First of all, I would like to thank the editorial team of our journal and all the authors who contributed to our first issue.

Considering the latest point that cumulative science has brought humanity to, we are happy to include in our journal any important findings, evidence-based information and experiences that may contribute to science on musculoskeletal system problems. See you in the next issue.

Sincerely,

Editor-in-Chief

Firat Ozan, MD, Prof,
